

Inside MCS America

Website Improvements

We at MCS America are proud to launch our new and improved website, some of which is still under construction.

A few updates tuned into a vastly new and improved website with a new look that is both easier to navigate and contains several new features.

One of the most prominent features is the new menu at the left, which contains links to each page of the site at the click of a mouse.

Menu items that were lost in the shuffle before and are now easily found include the vaccine/mercury/autism page, news links, newsletters, activist materials, and the gift shop.

New menu items added and/or under construction include pages for fibromyalgia, chronic fatigue syndrome, electrosensitivity, medical treatment (multiple chemical sensitivity), forums, brochures/signs, our blog, and our members group.

The state subsidiary pages have morphed into a new page titled "support and referrals", which contains national referral lists for doctors, dentists, support groups, forums, air/allergy/emf/pollution indexes, and farmers markets in each state.

The new website may be perused at <http://www.mcs-america.org>.

MCS America

The screenshot shows the MCS America website. At the top, it says "MCS America" with a logo of the United States and the URL "www.mcs-america.org". Below this is a "MICAGO Member" badge. A navigation menu on the left lists: Home, Multiple Chemical Sensitivity (MCS), Electrosensitivity, Chronic Fatigue Syndrome (CFS), Fibromyalgia (FM), Vaccines Mercury & Autism (VMA), Proclamations, Scientific Studies, Medical Treatment, Support & Referrals, Forums, Brochures & Signs, News Links, Newsletters, Activist Materials, MCS Gift Shop, Links, Blog, Join MCS America, and About Us.

The main content area has three sections:

- Our Mission: The mission of MCS America (MCSA) is:
 - To gain medical, legal, and social recognition for multiple chemical sensitivity (MCS) as a disorder of organic biological origin induced by toxic environmental insults.
 - To provide support and referral services to the individuals with multiple chemical sensitivity (MCS), chronic fatigue syndrome (CFS), and fibromyalgia (FM)
 - To ensure that environmental toxicants are identified, reduced, regulated, and enforced through lobbying for effective legislation.
- Our Position Statement on MCS: This paper supports MCS America's position that:
 - MCS is a disorder of organic biological origin induced by toxic environmental insults.
 - MCS requires immediate recognition in the workplace, medical community, school system, and public places across America.
 - It is crucial that environmental toxicants are identified and reduced or effectively regulated and enforced through legislation to prevent additional injury to citizens.

- MCS CAMPAIGN: Write the Presidential Candidates About MCS: Now is the time to begin educating the presidential candidates about multiple chemical sensitivity (MCS) and its devastating effects on the individual, the community and our nation. Let them know funding is needed for programs that educate both health care professionals and the general public about MCS, a committee is needed to help coordinate health agency research, promote the exchange of information, hold federal agencies accountable, and give advocates a voice in policy decisions, and more research is needed as it offers the greatest prospect of returning people with MCS to healthy, productive lives. Let our candidates know we are watching them and their actions with regard to MCS as we decide who to elect. Write your own letter or download our pre-designed letters and send one to each of the 13 presidential candidates.
